FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Corporate Translations Opens Office in the UK!

Nottingham, UK, June 12, 2012 – Corporate Translations, the leading provider of translation and linguistic validation solutions to the world’s top pharmaceutical, biotech and medical device companies, has opened another international office in Nottingham, UK to address the needs of the industry. Corporate Translations has hired Benjamin Rainforth to run the office. Ben has several years of very successful sales and management experience in localization.

“Having a sales and production site in the UK will enable Corporate Translations to better service our current clients and provide an excellent base from which to develop business with new organizations,” said Ted Gawlicki, Senior Vice President.

“I am personally greatly looking forward to working for Corporate Translations, a recognized leader in its field, and feel that by adding proactive sales activity for the region to our already exceptionally high-quality delivery standards, we can make a huge success of this new venture,” said Rainforth.

Corporate Translations has strong relationships with many of the life science companies in Western Europe and looks forward to the opportunity to connect with them more often on a face-to-face basis. Additionally, the UK production site will facilitate the company’s 24/7 customer service and provide easy access to Corporate Translations’ full array of services and solutions including translation, PRO Instrument validation, and multilingual desktop publishing.
