FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Corporate Translations has been recertified to ISO 9001:2008, EN 15038:2006 and newly certified to ISO 13485!

Corporate Translations' Quality Management System was recently recognized as highly sophisticated and well-managed during their recent recertification audit, which resulted in no corrective actions.

EAST HARTFORD, CT. – (October, 2014) – Corporate Translations, a leading provider of translation and linguistic validation solutions to the biopharmaceutical industry, is pleased to announce that SGS (Systems & Services Certification), an official ISO accreditation body, has granted Corporate Translations recertification to ISO 9001:2008 and EN 15038:2006 with no corrective actions noted.

In addition to the company's recertification to ISO 9001 and EN 15038, Corporate Translations has also been certified to ISO 13485, specifically to address the needs of their medical device customers. Corporate Translations' Quality Management System (QMS) and operational procedures have been expanded upon to address the unique requirements mandated by the industry when translating medical device-related content. Certification to ISO 13485 demonstrates Corporate Translations' commitment to superior customer satisfaction while solidifying the company's current position within the medical device sector.

Being certified to these standards has become a mandatory pre-requisite for providing translation services to the life science industry. Corporate Translations not only ensures that it meets the pre-requisite, but leverages its QMS to drive ongoing processes improvements aimed at meeting regulatory agencies' strict requirements. Corporate Translations continually monitors its key business processes through the use of key performance indicators which are transparently shared with the global sourcing managers responsible for selecting and closely monitoring our organization as a global translation service provider.

Corporate Translations has been ISO 9001 certified since 2007 and continues to deliver the highest quality translations to their clients. Not only has the company been successfully recertified, but Corporate Translations maintains an incredible audit track record, resulting in no major corrective actions having to be put in place. The biopharma companies who audit Corporate Translations continually acknowledge the maturity of their system and staff members' overall intimacy with the system.

“We have a very sophisticated quality management system that has been rated exceptional by both SGS and by our clients. We are proud of our near-flawless audit track record. Our organization is not only certified to these standards, but we are conscientiously compliant to the standards,” said Jill Balcerzak, Corporate Translations' Director of Quality. “Having a well-documented and regularly monitored QMS allows the company to enforce quality, consistency and drive continual improvement. Our staff members are very familiar with the company's Quality Management System and together as a whole, we embrace our documented procedures to ensure overall quality and customer satisfaction”.

Globally recognized and respected, ISO 9001:2008 and ISO 13485:2003 standards are set by the International Organization for Standardization (ISO), a Geneva-based worldwide federation of national standards bodies.
