Corporate Translations Participates in Hartford's Annual Corporate 5K to Benefit the Special Olympics!

August 15, 2011 – Corporate Translations, a leading provider of translation and linguistic validation solutions to the life science industry, had a team of runners/walkers participate in the Hartford Corporate 5K to benefit the Special Olympics. The race took place Thursday, Aug 11th at Bushnell Park in Hartford, CT. The goal of the run/walk was to encourage corporate team camaraderie while also benefiting a worthy charity.

The Special Olympics provide year-round sports training and athletic competition in a variety of Olympic-type sports for children and adults with intellectual disabilities.

“It was a great experience to run in the Corporate 5K this year,” said Alyson Murphy, Marketing Coordinator. “It was for such a great cause and I was really impressed with the number of Corporate Translations employees who participated. I’m so grateful to work for a company that organizes and supports these types of events.”

Corporate Translations encourages employees to be active in the community and to stay physically active. Corporate Translations’ President, Mary Gawlicki, stands behind the company’s Wellness Program by reimbursing employees for fees associated with races that support charitable causes in addition to many other annual wellness efforts.
